Dear neighbours

Thank you to everyone who has encouraged me to stand in this by-election. As a long-time resident of Melbourne my main interest is in making sure that Melbourne remains a great place to live.

By-elections are special. With just one seat up for election it gives voters a freedom to vote for who they really want. Labour's control of the District Council won't change whatever the result here - and we already have one Labour councillor in Melbourne.

Adding another Liberal Democrat to the Council would make a difference. Last year two Lib Dems were elected. They work actively to get a better share of resources across the whole District. I would do the same. Please vote for me.

Yours faithfully,

John James

Cllr David Hancock for Derbyshire Police and Crime Commissioner

Day to day policing should not be political. However political oversight to ensure that the service is fair, efficient and responds is ok.

Cllr David Hancock for Derbyshire's Police and Crime Commissioner.

David Hancock is the candidate to deliver this. He is not looking for a high profile role, but to help make sure that policing works wherever you live in Derbyshire.

David has the experience in representing local communities, and has a strong financial and administrative background to make him the best candidate for PCC.

Helen Tamblyn-Saville for East Midlands Mayor

We all deserve a cleaner, greener, safer region, and Helen Tamblyn-Saville is the candidate to deliver that.

Liberal Democrats believe in change from the grassroots up, not imposed from the top down. Helen's priorities include affordable and accessible transport links, a higher standard of new homes, and that no decisions should be made without considering the environmental impact.

Helen is a high street business owner, and former councillor. She knows the challenges facing the region and will ensure ground up collaboration across the region, not top down control.
